In the poultry department there are also a number of entries of fowls by breeders from the North. The new arrangement of this department, whereby exhibits will be made in collections, instead of single birds, is meeting with general approval, and, as this is an experiment, the officers of the society are looking forward to the result with much interest. Out of the grounds the cattle-pens are being rapidly filled up, and it is safe to say that every stall will be occupied. The same thing can be said occupied. How Discussions of Scientific Questions Help Agriculturists.

(Written for the Dispatch.) received your polite request to write nething about the Farmers' Institute appointed to be held the 9th of October in the Music Hall of the Exposition build-ing, and take the liberty to give your readers some account of farmers' institutes in general, with some particul-from the society who will request the schools, factories, city offices, freight depots, and other business places to close on that day, so as to make it a general holidar. The blocker of the state of the state Board of Agriculture and the owners of Virginia been provided.

I call the attention of those interested in agriculture and the owners of Virginia been provided. tion and education in regard to the profitable production of what they sell than the agriculturists. When the prices of agricultural products are low, the markets glutted and depressed, that tends to cheap production or enhance the market prices is important, whether on planting, cultivation, gathering, transportation, or marketing field crops, or in the selection of stock, the crops, or in the selection of stock, the rearing, handling, and sale of animals and poultry; or the production of milk, butter, and cheese, or the planting, cultivation, pruning, gathering, packing, and preserving of fruit. So, also, in these latter days, is the great value of preventing the depredation of insect and fungus diseases. The environments of the man who depends on the soil for his living are much that he needs soil for his living are such that he needs the experience of everybody that has gone before him, if he can secure it.

THE APPLICATION OF SCIENCE. Book farming has, in these latter days, been tested; science has been applied to the smallest, humblest, and cheapest industries, and for the benefit of the tiller of the soil, for the classes that feed the world, publications of the researches and experiments of the ablest scientists, aidd by the appropriations of governments have been scattered free among the peo-ple, and men have made money in agri-cultural industries disregarded and never utilized in Virginia before the war. The old planters of cotton and tobacco in the South never dreamed of the millions of lollars from melons, turnip-salad, truck, and small fruits. Southern poultry was consumed by the family and the "big meetings," and dairying consisted of hav-ing plenty of butter and buttermilk for the "hands." "Spring chicken," "Candle he "hands." "Spring chicken," "Candle ggs," "gilt-edged Jersey butter," and aerated milk" are results of science and ducation. Just here the farmers' insti-utes come in. It is said that the English Department had a scientific dairy carried around on wheels to teach butter making in the rural districts. Now New York appropriates $10,000 per annum; Pennsylvania, $7,000; Michigan, Wisconsin, and other Northwestern States, from $3,000 to $8,000, and Ohio $45 to seek county. Ohio $15 to each county, to be supplemented by each board of supervisors.

North Carolina provides by law that the Commissioner of Agriculture shall hold an institute once in two years, in every county in the State. All these are suc-ceeding, and the farmers are said to take great interest in them.

The State Board of Agriculture of this State at first appropriated $250 for an institute in each congressional district, and the members of the board had charge of arranging for its session and work, and the Commissioner of Agriculture was required to give any assistance upon the call of the members. This appro-priation was never fully used, and was reduced to $100, but this has not been fully used. The farmers of the distribu-never appear to have taken active part in the matter, and so much of the money set apart for the advantage of the agr-culturists of the different localities has some back into the State Treasury. Uness the agriculturists themselves an interest in these meetings and make the call on their representative on the board, nothing can be done.

THIS WEEK'S INSTITUTE. Three splendid and successful institutes have been held this year, and all gave great satisfaction to the farmers present. Colonel A. S. Buford, the member of the board for the Third Congressional District, has been invited to call for an institute the 9th of October, at the Exposition-Grounds, during the Three splendid and successful institutes lands to the fact that two distinguished and practical scientists have been se-cured to deliver addresses on subjects eminently practical. Looking to the large area of arable land, now uncullarge area of arable land, now uncul-tivated and for sale, wanting only prac-tical farmers to buy and occupy it, now on the market in Virginia, the address of Professor Whiting, of the Division of Soils, United States Department of Agriculture, will not only be most in-teresting, but will enlighten even those who think they know all about the value of Virginia lands. When he gives an account of the variety of soils in this State, and their peculiar adaptation to particular crops, many will find out from clentific and practical experiments shown their lands to produce crops for which they were, in many instances, unfitted, State, such as Professor Whitney prepared for his native State, Maryland, will be of infinite advantage in securing settlers of the best class for our surplus lands, as well as to inform our people that profitable production lies as much in th lection of the soils as in that of fertil-

Professor Alvon, of the Division of Professor Aron, of the Driston of Dairies, United States Department of Agriculture, is not only one of the most accomplished scientists, but is a most practical man in in all that pertains to furnishing the proper land and propor-tions of feed to produce milk and butter on the cheapest basis. For the surround-ings of this city no man could have been selected to speak more directly to the interests of the agriculturists.

NOT UP WITH OTHERS.

Our people are behind other States in these so-called smaller industries—smaller here, but in Northern States, with less advantages, producing more money than our largest and best crops. The body of the people have come to regard public speaking of every sort, from the pulpit down to the ward meeting, as impregnated with humbuggery and demagogism, so that it is hard to secure a proper and large audience for discussions or lectures such as these, where neither those who organize the move nor the speakers have "an axe to grind," and can speak the truth as they believe it winthout fear.

These farmers' institutes are as near pure "pro bono publico" as anything I know, and if they do not accomplish good in disseminating agricultural truth, it is not the fault of those that speak, but of those that hear. NOT UP WITH OTHERS.

those that hear.
